

The Cornell Method

Divide your page into three sections — main notes (detailed notes from readings or lecture), keywords/ questions (any keywords or questions related to the notes), and summary (a summary of key points). This allows for better organization and easier review.

The Outline Method

Use bullet points, letters, numerals, and indentation to structure main ideas and sub points clearly.

The Mapping Method

Create visual connections between concepts using diagrams or mind maps. Starting with a central theme or topic in the center, then creating branches with related topics, questions, and notes.

The Charting Method

Use tables to organize facts, comparisons, and relationships between concepts.
